"Daylight" marks a significant milestone in the artist's musical journey, offering a deeply personal exploration of the human experience through original compositions.

"Daylight is the first album on which I have presented my own compositions. This album is like my diary. It is very personal. With it, I open the door to my soul: to my feelings, my thoughts, my emotions...

This music conveys beautiful love as well as sorrow and loneliness;
it also expresses my dreams.

I now invite my listeners to feel and experience them with me."
